Iverson, Cheeks don't speak

March 19, 2008 by manuelescobar

When Allen Iverson left town after being traded to the Denver Nuggets on Dec. 19, 2006, he departed without having any words with 76ers coach Maurice Cheeks. Fifteen months later, they still haven't spoken. The relationship between Cheeks and Iverson may have started going downhill after an incident on Nov. 29, 2006. The two had words at practice. Iverson left, and then didn't attend a mandatory team party and was fined $20,000. He then played in three games, the final one on Dec. 6, a 121-94 loss at Chicago.....and we flashback to one of A.I's finer moments...

Chad Johnson's offseason of discontent could be headed for its first showdown with the Bengals. The Bengals wide receiver, in a series of Los Angeles-based television appearances, said he would not participate in the team's offseason strength and conditioning program beginning Monday. "I will not be there," he said during a late afternoon stop at Current TV and Current.com. "There are a lot of issues that need to be dealt with. Nothing has changed."

Juice Crew Reunite to Headline A3C Festival

March 19, 2008 by manuelescobar

It's been about a decade since the legendary Juice Crew last rocked a stage together, but in a matter of days, Biz Markie, Big Daddy Kane, Marley Marl, MC Shan, Roxanne Shante, and Craig G will reunite for a headlining performance at the fourth annual A3C Hip Hop Festival. Unfortunately, Masta Ace will not be able to make the trip because of some previously scheduled promotion for his new album.

The Juice Crew's set goes down this Friday, March 21- right in the middle of A3C, which takes place at Atlanta's CW Midtown Complex from March 20-22. Other performers at the festival include Clipse/Re-Up Gang, Del the Funky Homosapien, Three 6 Mafia, Little Brother, Jeru the Damaja, Aceyalone, Guilty Simpson, Akrobatik, and Public Enemy's DJ Lord.

The Raconteurs Reveal Consolers Tracklist

March 19, 2008 by manuelescobar

So the idea is, you're not gonna get to hear Consolers of the Lonely, the just-announced sophomore set from Jack White and Brendan Benson's Raconteurs until it's actually issued March 25 on Third Man/XL/Warner Brothers. That's this coming Tuesday- six whole days!

You can, however, now gaze longingly at its tracklist and imagine what it's gonna sound like. Will "The Switch and the Spur" be a country-rock jam? Will "These Stones Will Shout" be the Stones-y shouter? Could "Many Shades of Black" be their Sunn O))) homage? See, we don't know, and you don't either, and that's what's so great about all this. It's like the last ten years never happened!

As you know, the Raconteurs are hitting the road in support of their new disc, and Raleigh, North Carolina's Birds of Avalon have apparently been handpicked by the band to open their initial string of North American dates...read more at Pitchfork Media

With the recent boom in running retro styles, big brands have been digging through the old catalogs in search of next greatest hit. adidas has done well with this upcoming July release of the ZX 90s Run Tex.
